From Bad to Worse.

New Boarder—"Our landlady seems to be deeply interested in the European war news." Old Boarder—"Well, I hope she doesn't contemplate the substitution of hardtack and salt pork for hash and prunes."

How to Brew Tea.

It is generally believed that anyone can make tea. This is far from the case. Great care should be taken to have the teapot hot. Scald it out with hot water before putting in the dry tea. The water to pour on the leaves should not only be boiling, but should be freshly boiled. The big teakettle which stands on the stove all day and is filled at irregular intervals does not furnish the best water for the purpose. Get a small enameled-ware kettle holding about a quart of water. Pour the water on the tea, which should not steep over three minutes. Then you will have a cup of tea which is not only very much better in flavor but is much more wholesome than that made in the ordinary careless fashion.
